

Making things better - Putting things right

Date: Tuesday 18th September 2007

2 repeat sessions 10am-1pm or 1.30pm -4.30pm

Venue: Barnet College - North London Business Park site

An introduction to 'Restorative Justice' what is it and its possible uses in children and young peoples settings, the workplace and at home.

Participants: Any interested individuals but particularly staff and volunteers from voluntary and community organisations working with children and their families.

Staff and volunteers from schools, police, housing associations, health

If you work with young people and their families in the community or in or with schools you are likely to needing fresh ideas for:

- ✚ developing a culture of mutual respect, trust and belonging
- ✚ building and maintaining relationships in challenging situations
- ✚ helping others to resolve their conflicts for themselves
- ✚ resolving your own conflicts effectively
- ✚ dealing with angry individuals
- ✚ tackling bullying in a positive way
- ✚ responding creatively to trouble

Trainer: Belinda Hopkins is the founder of Transforming Conflict the UK's leading provider of training and consultancy in the field of restorative approaches in educational settings.

Barnet Children's Fund has funded a school based Restorative Justice programme for the past 3 years. The responses have been unanimously positive from school staff, parents and most importantly from the children and young people themselves. We are holding this ½ day seminar in order to inspire you with this simple and effective technique for transforming conflict into self awareness and other positive outcomes for children, their families and for you.

it's a bright idea!
